On February 13, 2019, was held a Press Conference given by Jean-Marie BELLAFFIORE (Deputy General Manager of BNP Paribas Personal Finance) and Flavien NEUVY (CEO of L'Observatoire Cetelem). It was at Hôtel de l'Echiquier in Paris. The Theme was "L'Observatoire Cetelem 2019" Report involving 17 European Countries (Costumers and their Consumption from those Countries) being scrutinized...

The Report was divided in Three Parts :

- * Stable Moral Behavior and Increasing Global Saving Intentions
- * To consume Local & Responsible Purchasing
- * How to Do Better ?

Understanding Household Consumption Patterns is about understanding Human Behaviour. Consumption Patterns in Europe are very Different to those 50 years ago. Important Factors that drive our Consumption include Growing Incomes, Globalisation of the Economy, Technological Breakthroughs (such as the Internet and Mobile Phones), decreasing Household Sizes, an Ageing Population, and Habits and Cultures.

We buy increasing Numbers of Electric and Electronic Goods (such as TVs, PCs, Laptops, Mobile Phones and Kitchen Appliances), and we also replace these more frequently than previously... Tourism is Growing Fast, and travel to and from our Destinations is most often by Car or Plane. In Tourist Destinations, Water and Energy Consumption, Land Use, and Waste/Wastewater Generation often have Considerable Environmental Impacts.... Sustainable Consumption is Key in the Plan of Action for Sustainable Development... Consumers learned long ago how to circumvent Price Increases. The Strategies vary according to Economic Situation... To sum up, in all 17 Countries surveyed People are buying but they are buying Differently.

We have Organic Meat, Organic Fruit, Organic Vegetables, Organic Milk, all from Organic Farms that produce them, Organically. We even have Organic Cotton and Hemp Clothing. There are many Rules and Regulations that determine whether something is Organic or not. Having shed its Hippy-Dippy Image, Organic Food is among the Faster-Growing Categories in Supermarkets even though it adds to Food Bills and Studies vary when it comes to perceived Health Benefits. The Demand for Organic extends from Supermarket Aisles to the Multitude of Farmers Markets that have sprung up... Interest is booming, it is due to a More Conscientious Consumer and Improved Farming Practices that make Organic Yields more Robust.

Product Quality is also how well the Product does what it's supposed to do, and how well it holds up over Time. Some Consumers view Quality as a Price Point while others appreciate a Product because it's "Greener."<sup>[2]</sup> Regardless of the Various Viewpoints from the Public, Product Quality is a Competitive Marker for Brands that affects Purchasing Decisions and Profitability. 92% of People trust Recommendations from Friends and Family above all other Forms of Advertising when making a Purchase Decision. This is why when it comes to Influencing Consumers, nothing comes close to Beating Word of Mouth. One Dimension of Quality is how a Product Looks, Feels, Sounds, Tastes or Smells. The Colors, Prints, Shapes, Textures and Features make all the Difference, and it's what sets them Apart from the Competition. Customers notice this Kind of Details, and they can make or break a Sale...
